PRODUCE PRO SOFTWARE MOVES TO LARGER OFFICE FACILITY

Software solution company expands to new office to support growing business.

WOODRIDGE, IL (March 05, 2011) — In response to the continuous growth of their customer base and the addition of several new team members, Produce Pro Software has moved its headquarters to a larger office in Woodridge, Illinois.

“We reached a point where we needed a larger office in order to accommodate our additional employees and to better support our customers. We were fortunate that the best location ended up being right next door in suite 304,” said Tony Zuccato, Vice President of Produce Pro.

The short distance allowed for a seamless changeover, with no interruption of service to the customer base. The team is already taking advantage of the extra space which includes a training room and additional meeting rooms for group collaboration. The old office had 6,500 square feet, whereas the new office measures over 11,000 square feet.

“This move to our new office reflects our strong performance. We are dedicated to providing the best solutions and support to our customers, and having the right environment for our work is key. As our company continues to grow, the larger office provides the best opportunity for Produce Pro to develop as industry-leading provider of software and services for the perishable food industry,” stated the President, Dave Donat.

Produce Pro Software is a full-service software and solutions provider, serving perishable food distributors for over 20 years. Their 115-plus customers and over 3,800 end users include some of the largest companies in produce distribution. Produce Pro has over 55 dedicated team members and has office locations in Los Angeles, Chicago, and Philadelphia
